

Helper Quick-Start

► Start
June 12

The simple version — just the essentials to begin. If anything's unclear, just ask 😊

Cold brew · every day

Basic clean · tidy + laundry

Cook · batch & freeze

Cold Brew

every day

ready in ~12 hrs

1. Add coffee grounds + cold water to the jug (about 1 part coffee to 8 parts water).
2. Stir, cover, and leave it ~12 hours — overnight is perfect.
3. Strain out the grounds — ready to pour. Keep in the fridge and make a fresh batch each day.

Cleaning

keep it basic

- Tidy anything lying around — put things back in their place.
- Make the bed (quick is totally fine).
- Do the laundry → hang it outside to dry.
- The next day: bring it in & fold.

That's it — nothing heavy 😊

Breakfast

batch & freeze

recipes on p.2

① Overnight Oats

Rolled oats + our soy protein + soy milk + chia. Make a few jars at once.

② Soy Protein Pudding (jelly)

Soy milk + our soy protein + a little gelatin. Set in cups overnight.

Aim for ~14–18g protein per portion → full recipes on page 2.

Dinner

batch · eat within 2 days

For Momo & Rao — pick one protein:

Shrimp

Squid

Chicken

Add vegetables from the market. Easy & quick recipe on page 2.

Where to buy:

🐟 Fish market — squid & shrimp (cash) · 🌿 Street market — vegetables (cash) · 🛒 Donki — chicken breast

The first week

start small, ramp up

► June 12 — Day 1

Start with just 1 dish. No pressure to do more than that.

If it feels easy — make 2

1 breakfast to last the next ~3 days + 1 dinner to last the next ~2 days.

Then...

We'll review together and take it from there 🌱

Full guide & all recipes (breakfast + lunch/dinner) → momokoashi.github.io/home-helper-guide

This Week's Recipes

The three to start with. Make extra so there's always something ready.

Breakfast
~14–18g protein

Hitting ~14–18g protein per breakfast portion: the main protein comes from our soy protein powder — use about 1 scoop per portion and check the tub's label so each serving lands around 14–18g. Tip: use soy milk (not oat milk) — it has more protein.

Overnight Oats

~14–18g protein / portion

5 min + chill

makes 4 • keeps 3–4 days

INGREDIENTS (4 PORTIONS)

- 1½ cups rolled oats
- 4 scoops our soy protein (1 per portion)
- 2½ cups soy milk
- 4 tbsp chia seeds
- Fruit to top (banana, berries)

STEPS

1. Mix oats, soy protein, chia & soy milk in a bowl until no lumps.
2. Divide into 4 jars, cover, chill overnight (4–5 hrs+).
3. Each morning: stir, add a splash of milk if thick, top with fruit.

Soy Protein Jelly (pudding)

~14–18g protein / portion

10 min + set

makes 4 • keeps 3–4 days

INGREDIENTS (4 CUPS)

- 2½ cups soy milk
- 4 scoops our soy protein (1 per portion)
- 1 packet gelatin (or 1 tsp agar for vegan)
- Optional: a little honey/vanilla, fruit on top

STEPS

1. Warm half the soy milk (don't boil); whisk in the gelatin until dissolved.
2. Whisk the soy protein into the cool half until smooth, then combine.
3. Pour into 4 cups, chill 2 hrs+ until set. Top with fruit.

Easy & Quick Dinner — Garlic-Lemon Shrimp Stir-Fry

~22–25g protein / portion

~15 min

scale up to batch for 2 days

INGREDIENTS (2 PORTIONS)

- Shrimp, peeled (fish market)
- Garlic + ginger
- Bell pepper + snow peas (or any market veg)
- Olive oil, lemon, pinch of chili flakes, a little salt
- Serve with rice

STEPS

1. Heat oil; add garlic & ginger, then the vegetables — stir-fry 2–3 min.
2. Add the shrimp and cook just 2–3 min until pink (don't overcook — they turn rubbery).
3. Finish with lemon juice & chili. Serve over rice. To batch: just double or triple it.

Reference: Clean Food Crush — Healthy Shrimp Recipes (cleanfoodcrush.com)

Lightly seasoned, the way we like it • more recipe options at momokoashi.github.io/home-helper-guide